

About the Webinar

A progression from disciplinary research to multi-disciplinary and interdisciplinary research in the science and social sciences necessitates of having a comprehensive technological framework for collection of data and dissemination of results. Spatial-intelligence is an informatics framework for pioneering of modern information through assimilation and analysis of large volume of data and applications.

Results/outputs available in form of models and maps/tables provide a better understanding of the phenomenon/events. The roles of such technologies increased manifold in global pandemic like of Covid-19, where the entire economies and human beings are at risk.

Objective

- Discussions on the roles of spatial intelligence during post-COVID hydro-meteorological extremes.
- Discussions on the roles of spatial intelligence in E-governance.
- Discussions on the transformation of spatial technology.
